Mill Workers Beaten by Pickets Despite Troops

Minor Disorders Attend Re-opening of Textile Plant in Pawtuxet Valley

Providence, March 2.—Minor disorders today accompanied the re-opening of the Hope Company's textile plant in the Pawtuxet Valley, significant as the first test of strength between mill owners and the operatives who have been on strike for almost six weeks.

In the Blackstone valley, where many mills have been closed by the strike, Governor South today ordered the withdrawal of part of the troops. A further development in the strike situation President Thomas F. McWhorter of the United Textile Workers Union issued a statement in which he reiterated his demand for public hearings on the industrial condition of the valley and declared again that the strike would accept any settlement based on the results of such an investigation.
